Data Subject Rights

Under GDPR, you have the right to:

1. Access your personal data

Example: You can request a copy of all the personal information we hold about you, such as your account details, order history, and preferences.

2. Rectify incorrect data

Example: If you notice an error in your personal details (like a misspelled name or incorrect address), you can request that we correct it.

3. Erase your data in certain circumstances

Example: You can request the deletion of your account data if you no longer wish to use our services or if your data is no longer necessary for the purposes it was collected.

4. Restrict or object to processing

Example: If you believe your data is being processed unlawfully or if you no longer wish to receive marketing emails, you can request that we restrict or stop processing your personal data.

5. Data portability

Example: You can request a copy of your data in a machine-readable format, which can be transferred to another service provider.

Data Security

We take appropriate measures to ensure data security, protect against unauthorized access, and comply with GDPR.

1. Technical Measures

Example: We use encryption for payment transactions and secure your personal account data with multi-factor authentication.

2. Organizational Measures

Example: Our employees and contractors are trained on GDPR requirements, and access to your personal data is restricted to those who need it to perform their roles.

Data Retention

Personal data is retained as long as necessary for the purposes stated, unless a longer retention period is required or permitted by law.

Example: We store your order history for a period of 7 years for tax and auditing purposes, after which it will be anonymized or deleted.

Changes to this Policy

We may update this policy. We will notify you of significant changes and update the “last updated” date at the top of the policy.

Example: If we introduce new features on our website that require additional data collection or processing, we will update this policy and inform you about the changes.
